

Worthington, OH

IV

Dec. 16, 1811

Liberty Hall
Jan. 01, 1812

The geographical extent of this phenomon we cannot yet determine, except to the northeast and east. From those quarters we have seen both letters and newspapers dated since the 16th inst. From these it would appear that no shock was felt farther north in the eastern part of this state than about 39 degrees 45 minutes. The newspapers from Worthington and New-Lisbon in 40 degrees, or upwards, are entirely silent as to this occurrence.